BISHOP BLOCKS CAMPAIGN PROBE

NAVAL OFFICER DEAD, SECOND HURT IN CRASH

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—A U.S. naval officer was killed and another officer injured perhaps fatally, today when the automobile in which they were enroute to Washington overturned following a collision at Upper Darby.

Frederick W. Monday, 32, of 2033 Hamlen St., Northeast, Washington chief engineer of the U. S. S. Richmond, now docked at Boston, was fatally injured.

His companion, C. C. Morris, 36, of 4202 12th Place, Northeast, Washington, was rushed to the Delaware County Hospital in a serious condition. Morris suffered a fractured skull, body bruises and possible internal injuries.

The officers' machine crashed into a car driven by J. Paul Brown, 48, of Aronimink, who escaped unhurt.

Monday and Morris were believed enroute from Boston to Washington to pay a surprise visit to their families.

POPE PIUS ATTENDS OFFICIAL OPENING OF CHURCH COLLEGE

Leaves Vatican For Elaborate Rites at Propaganda Fide

VATICAN CITY, April 24.—Cerebral splendor marked the official opening today of the new Propaganda Fide College of the Roman Catholic Church, at which Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, officiated.

The ceremonies were attended by representatives of sixty nations, including many American prelates.

Pope Pius XI, without previous announcement of that intention, left the Vatican to attend the formal opening program.

The unexpected appearance of the pontiff for the ceremony lent added dignity and importance to the occasion.

Pope Pius' arrival at the new college was widely cheered by the thousands of seminarians, prelates and church dignitaries.

His holiness was followed by a retinue of sixteen cardinals, who escorted him to the principal altar. The Pope knelt for some moments before the altar and then took his place on the papal throne at the left side of the church. He extended his blessing to those present.

Accompanied by his retinue, Pope Pius visited the college buildings, entering the assembly hall by way of the right wing. He blessed the building with holy water and then returned to the church to address the gathering. In his speech he paid high tribute to the efforts of Cardinal Mundelein in behalf of the society.

"We thank most deeply and are grateful to all who contributed to the building of the college, especially Cardinals Mundelein and Van Pelt," his holiness said.

"We are most happy to be present in alternation and after having blessed the laying of the cornerstone, to the college now completed we give our apostolic blessing together to all who contributed to it."

"It is better to let the eloquence of things speak for itself, but we do want to say what beautiful, lasting and hopeful things are expected in the future from all this."

"All must thank divine providence for this magnificent success, which is a great achievement even considered in itself but which takes on really infinite greatness when it is realized it is a toll in the hands of God's marvelous power and glory."

The Pope wore the red hat of the cardinalate and a red mantle over his white robes. He entered his automobile at 11:35 amid enthusiastic cheers, and re-entered Vatican City five minutes later.

The Pope's visit to the college, built with American funds and perched on the slopes of Janiculum Hill, marked his second emergence from the confines of the Vatican since the signing of the Lateran treaties, which ended the sixty year breach between church and state in Italy.

Assisted by Fathers McGuire and Casey of Chicago, Cardinal Mundelein began the program with celebration of pontifical mass in the church of the new college. The mass was attended by a distinguished group of church and diplomatic representatives.

The new college was named after Saint Fidelis of Sigmaringen, first martyr for the propaganda of the faith, annually commemorated by the Catholic Church on April 24.

THIRTY-ONE HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH

NEW YORK, April 24.—Thirty-one persons were suffering today from injuries received when two Brooklyn bound trolleys collided last night in the middle of a bridge. Women screamed and windows were broken as the passengers fled from their seats. Only two of the passengers were taken to a hospital.

MARLENE ARRIVES

NEW YORK, April 24.—"Hollywood—do not care particularly for Hollywood."

That was the statement credited today to Marlene Dietrich, German screen actress, who is in New York for a day or two before going to the west coast to make a new film.

She said she was not looking forward to her Hollywood visit and when questioned about her trip there merely shrugged her shoulders.

SHOUSE EXCHANGES BITTER WORDS WITH FESS ON STATEMENT

Senator Denies His Party Circulated Religious Attack

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Religious bigotry that figured so prominently in the 1928 elections was back in the forefront today with the "lie" being exchanged between the high executives of the two major parties.

The spark that kindled the fire anew and sent its smoke over political camps throughout the land was dropped in a speech Jouette Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, made in San Francisco ten days ago.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, said a newspaper's account of Shouse's speech attributed the speaker as saying the Republican committee had bought 10,000,000 copies of a magazine that contained an attack on John J. Raskob's religion. Raskob is chairman of the Democratic national committee and is a Catholic.

Fess denied the allegation and publicly accused Shouse of telling a "deliberate lie."

Today Shouse declared Fess' statement was "wholly without foundation," that he never heard of the man Fess said wrote the attack on Raskob, and reminded the Republican chief that he, himself, once admitted he had told the "newspaper boys" a falsehood.

Shouse said he had called attention in his San Francisco speech "to an article published by Scribner's last September, excerpts from which were reproduced in a pamphlet issued by the Republican national committee under the heading 'smear Hoover-Raskob's order to his subsidized propagandist'."

Then Shouse referred to the congressional record of Feb. 9, 1928, when the nation was figuring the meaning of former President Coolidge's famous statement: "I do not choose to run," and quoted Senator Fess' statement from its pages:

"When I got out to the newspaper boys I said to the boys make it perfectly clear that when I am talking about the President being drafted next year I am talking on my own responsibility—I am not talking with his approval. Then I added what was not true but I wanted to get it across. I find the President seems to be greatly displeased with what I have said."

Shouse said the foregoing quotes were the senator's "exact language" and said Fess' interview with the press followed a conference he had with Coolidge at the White House.

SPANISH ELECTION PLANNED JUNE 21

MADRID, April 24.—The Spanish electorate will go to the polls on June 21 to choose its future regime, it was announced today by Provisional President Alcalá Zamora.

The general elections in addition to electing a constituent Cortes, will determine one and for all whether Spain remains a republic or reverts to a monarchy. The recent overwhelming Republican victory at the municipal balloting forced King Alfonso XIII from the throne, but he refused to abdicate until the people of Spain have definitely voted a republic.

CHALLENGES RIGHT OF NYE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATION

Blames Ill Health; Open To Citation For Contempt

WASHINGTON, April 24.—After investigating a score of senatorial campaigns without interference, the Nye campaign fund committee today faced a crisis as it met to consider the defiance of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Anti-Saloon League and Methodist Episcopal Church official.

The bishop, called to explain his campaign activities in 1928, told the committee he was too ill to undergo the rigors of an examination, although his health enabled him to preach and lecture. He also defied the committee's right to investigate his private affairs, charging its proposed inquiry was unconstitutional.

The committee, of which Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota is chairman, investigated a score of senatorial campaigns last year without having its authority challenged.

The investigation into Bishop Cannon's political career was ordered when the senate adopted a special resolution at the demand of Senator Carter Glass (D) of Virginia.

The preamble set forth the bishop's activities as chairman of the committee of southern anti-Saloon Democrats.

There were indications the committee might postpone a decision on the bishop's defiance until next fall, when the senate returns to session. It was pointed out the committee is powerless to compel him to testify and can only cite him to the senate on a charge of contempt.

The contempt proceeding has been invoked a number of times in recent years when recalcitrant witnesses challenged the authority of the senate, or defied investigating committees. Each time the courts upheld the senate.

The committee has tried for months to get Cannon's version of his campaign activities, particularly the handling of campaign funds. Its investigators have found evidence indicating the bishop played a really active role, handling funds like a party leader.

There was one fund, $65,000, turned over to Cannon by E. C. Jameson of New York, which the committee wants explained. Thus far, the bishop has insisted it is a private matter, the senate having no authority to investigate it.

In addition to the bishop's defiance, the committee may consider the request of former Senator Heflin (D) of Alabama, for a further inquiry into Alabama's last senatorial primary and election. The Nye committee may launch such an inquiry, although the senate's regular privileges and elections committee is now investigating that election and conducting a recount of the ballots cast when Senator Heflin lost to John H. Bankhead was returned an official victor.

BANK SOLVENT BUT FORCED TO CLOSE

JACKSON, O., April 24.—Although said to be solvent, the Citizens' Bank of Jackson was closed today because its name was used in a classroom discussion by a high school student attempting to illustrate the effect of a run on a bank.

Long lines of worried depositors withdrew their funds after sons and daughters carried home a rumor that the bank's assets had become endangered.

The presence in Jackson of state examiners making an inspection of the bank's books was said to have caused general acceptance of the report.

State Banking Superintendent Ira J. Fulton came here and took charge after the clamor for a return of deposits started. By the time he arrived the bank's supply of cash had been depleted.

Organized in 1905 with a capital stock of $50,000, the bank reported resources of $965,664 March 25.

TEN MEET DEATH IN ACCIDENTS

CHICAGO, April 24.—Crashes between autos and trains today had taken the toll of ten lives within the Chicago area.

Five victims were occupants of a car that struck a moving Soo Line freight train early today at a crossing near Antioch in Lake County.

Two city bridge tenders stepped into the path of a fast moving train later in the morning and were killed.

The three other victims were occupants of an automobile that crashed into a Chicago bound Pennsylvania train at a crossing in Gary, Ind., yesterday.

CITY FIREMAN FACES CHARGE; SUSPENDED AWAITING HEARING

REPORTED SLAIN

William Hanifan, city fireman and former chief of the department has been suspended indefinitely by City Manager M. C. Smith, pending an investigation of charges of drunkenness preferred against him by Fire Chief Herman Fisher, it became known Thursday.

The fireman will be given a hearing at a recess meeting of City Commission Monday at 7 p. m., at which time Chief Fisher is expected to introduce additional evidence to substantiate the charges and Hanifan will have an opportunity to defend himself.

THREATEN SHAKE UP IN STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT SOON

Senate Committee May Reorganize To End Evils

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—"Complete reorganization" of the state highway department was threatened today by a state senate investigating committee.

Elimination of "present evils" was declared by members of the committee investigating rumored graft and collusion in the department to be the object of its probe. Chairman David Lorchbach (D) of Cincinnati, announced that executive sessions of the committee will continue for several weeks before public hearings will be held.

Senator Lorchbach announced the aim of the investigation at the conclusion of the committee's second meeting. He indicated that other members agree with him that a shakeup in the structure of the organization of the department is imperative.

Executive sessions will be continued, Lorchbach said, because much of the information in the hands of the committee is of secret nature and would make successful completion of the probe impossible if it were made public now.

All charges and suspicions of graft in highway departments of the past decade will be publicly aired before the final report is returned late in December, Lorchbach said.

Public hearings will begin shortly after the legislature completes its taxation session which is expected to be some time in June, Lorchbach announced.

FILM STAR ILL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 24.—Ralph Forbes, screen actor, today was reported recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Forbes was stricken while on an outing in the mountains and hurried back here to be operated upon.

Commission To Try Former Chief Here Next Wednesday

William Hanifan, city fireman and former chief of the department has been suspended indefinitely by City Manager M. C. Smith, pending an investigation of charges of drunkenness preferred against him by Fire Chief Herman Fisher, it became known Thursday.

The fireman will be given a hearing at a recess meeting of City Commission Monday at 7 p. m., at which time Chief Fisher is expected to introduce additional evidence to substantiate the charges and Hanifan will have an opportunity to defend himself.

In written charges filed with the city manager, Chief Fisher asserted the fireman was off duty half a day in April and half a day in May, 1930 after imbibing too freely of intoxicants. He also charged Hanifan was found drinking while on duty last March 30 and that last April 19 the former chief was "absent by request" when he reported in no condition to work.

Hanifan was suspended indefinitely last Tuesday and was to have been given a hearing before the commission Thursday night.

Rather than pass judgment in the matter on the unsupported statements made by the fire chief, the commission decided to continue the hearing until Monday night, when Chief Fisher will present witnesses in an effort to verify the charges he has made.

Attorney Marcus Shoup, counsel for Hanifan, told the commission the charges were entirely unwarranted and untrue. He characterized the charges as "a cheap attempt to throw my client out of a position on the department."

Hanifan was demoted to the rank of regular fireman March 24, 1930, after he had been adjudged guilty of incompetency as an outgrowth of a collision between a fire truck and a runaway December 20, 1929 in which two girls were injured.

At that time he was suspended from duty for ten days. After being demoted the suspension was lifted and he was ordered reinstated.

Prior to his demotion, Hanifan had served as fire chief since June 1, 1925 when he was promoted from the rank of lieutenant to succeed Fire Chief T. B. Claire, who resigned. He has been a member of the department for more than eight years.

FLOODS IN RUSSIA BLAMED FOR DAMAGE

MOSCOW, April 24.—Widespread damage was caused throughout Soviet Russia today by floods resulting from unusually heavy snows.

The Moskva River overflowed its south bank, inundating a large section of Moscow. The city's largest candy factory was flooded and the main capital building, Russia's tallest "skyscraper" was menaced by the rising waters.

A dozen small cities in various parts of the country were reported seriously menaced. Bridges over the Bobruisk River were broken by the swirling waters, while 200 houses at Borisov were completely submerged.

The main line tracks of the Moscow to Berlin Railway were washed out in several places, but repaired speedily. The Dnieper was reported rising rapidly above the Dnieperostroy Hydroelectric dam, one of the largest engineering undertakings of the Soviet regime.

DISCOVERY OF RIFLE AND BANK BOOKS INDICATES GANG RIDE

CHICAGO, April 24.—Search for possible Chicago victims of a "gang ride" was started today when Jake Balwig, a farmer living sixteen miles from Madison Wis., found in a pond at his farm several bankbooks and a rifle and several rounds of ammunition.

Sheriff Fred T. Finn of Madison, hurried to the farm and seeing the articles, immediately got in touch by long distance telephone with Chief of Detectives John Norton here.

Floating in the water were two bankbooks, containing the names of H. E. Ford and Florence Ford.

HAWKS PUTS MERCURY TO SHAME

Capt. FRANK M. HAWKS and HIS RECORDS

PARIS to LONDON—229 MI.—59 MIN.
LONDON to ROME—900 MI.—5 HOURS—22 MIN.
LONDON to BRUSSELS—200 MI.—1 HOUR.
LOS ANGELES to NEW YORK—12 HOURS—30 MIN.
NEW YORK to LOS ANGELES—15 HOURS

With one more record behind him Capt. Frank Hawks, American aviator, is looking for more marks to shatter. His latest feat in flying from Le Bourget field, Paris, to Heston airdrome, England, a distance of 229 miles in fifty-nine minutes, faster than any other person ever has made the trip, partially alleviates his disappointment in failing to complete his round-trip flight to Rome from London.

Exhaustion of his fuel supply by head winds forced him to land in a field near Glen, 100 miles south of Paris.

D. A. R. Names Officers, Hears Narcotic Address

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Having elected seven vice presidents general the D. A. R. today listened to an address on the suppression of narcotics by H. J. Anslinger, federal commissioner of narcotics. This afternoon Rep. Hamilton Fish (R) of New York, will deliver his censored talk on the communist menace in this country. The speech was deleted of criticism of the state department and administration's Nicaragua policy.

Fish agreed to allow this cut out when D. A. R. officers objected.

Anslinger said it was difficult to estimate the number of drug addicts in America today, but declared in his opinion the federal narcotic laws have materially reduced their number. Recent surveys by his division, he asserted, indicated that there are not more than 100,000 persons afflicted with the craving.

He made no recommendations, but told of work in the future designed to further curb the evil. He said most of narcotics sold in the United States were smuggled in, and that a "substantial over-production" existed abroad. He predicted the narcotics conference, which will meet next month in Geneva under the auspices of the League of Nations, would accomplish lasting results in its campaign to eliminate the traffic in narcotics.

"To arrive at a convention which will be satisfactory to all parties and at the same time will represent an effective and lasting restriction of drug manufacture to the purpose stated," he said "involves the consideration of many perplexing questions, but it is the hope of all who are interested in the solution of the great humanitarian problem of stamping out narcotic drug addiction that such an international agreement will finally be reached, and made effective."

All of the nine candidates for the seven vice presidents general received more than the $30 necessary votes for election, but the leading seven were elected. They were:

Mrs. Herbert Gaffney of Atlanta, Ga., who received 1,388 votes; Mrs. Charles E. Herrick, Chicago, 1,344; Mrs. Henderson Vaughn, Wheeling, W. Va., 1,259; Mrs. James Bliss Cranshaw, Fort Wayne, Ind., 1,229; Mrs. William H. Pouch New York City, 1,255; Mrs. Charles F. Bathrick, Battle Creek, Mich., 1,229; and Mrs. James T. Rountree, Terrell, Texas, 1,229.

Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton of Philadelphia, was elected honorary vice president general.

INFANTA ISABELLA RITES ARE DELAYED

PARIS, April 24.—Funeral plans for the Infanta Isabella, King Alfonso's aunt, may be held in abeyance today pending the exiled Spanish monarch's return from London.

The aged infanta, most popular member of the royal family, was heartbroken by the turn of events that drove the Bourbon dynasty into exile. With realization that death was near, she expressed a wish that her body be not returned to Spain until the monarchy has been restored.

Despite her dying request, there is a possibility that the body will be taken to the Escorial Palace in Madrid for burial alongside other members of the Bourbon line.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS DR. KELLEY VISITS PLACE NEAR OFFICE

Denies He Is Much Sought Doctor And Eludes Searchers

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—Two live wire developments today injected new pep into the strange case of the "doctor's disappearance."

The missing physician, Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, who disappeared after driving into a blustering spring storm Monday night on what is believed to have been a faked sick call, was seen in a restaurant near his office early today police were informed.

This startling information followed on the heels of a report that a pencilled letter had been received by the Kelley family presumably from the missing physician and outlining a $100,000 ransom demand.

That any ransom letter has been received however, was denied emphatically by Carroll W. Harlan, a lawyer friend of the Kelley family. Harlan has acted as Mrs. Kelley's spokesman to the press.

James Markedes, owner of the Blackstone restaurant which is in the vicinity of the missing doctor's office phoned police today and told them excitedly that the missing physician had walked into his establishment at 2 o'clock this morning for an early breakfast. Markedes said that he knew the doctor on sight but that to make doubly sure that he was not mistaken he had rushed to a nearby garage where Doctor Kelly keeps his car and informed Paul Johnson, one of the garage attendants, of his find.

Markedes said that Johnson returned to his restaurant with him and also identified the customer as the missing physician.

Markedes said the customer, when paying for his breakfast, opened his purse, which contained about $15 in bills and a newspaper picture which resembled one which has been printed of Mrs. Kathleen Kelley, the doctor's wife.

"Good morning, Dr. Kelley," Markedes greeted his customer, he told police. "No, I'm not doctor Kelley," the customer replied. Markedes said, "but I'm looking for Doctor Kelley."

As the man left the restaurant he looked dazed, Markedes said, and a blue bruised spot where he might have been sluged was revealed on the side of his jaw.

The garage attendant attempted to follow the man, but lost him, Markedes told police.

A police detail conducted an investigation in the neighborhood where the doctor was said to have been seen but could find no trace of him. The physician's nearby office was also searched but no evidence that he had been there recently were revealed.

WHITE FAVORS BILL REQUIRING NOTICE OF WEDDING PLANS

Provides Five-Day Notice To Obtain Licenses

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—Having won Governor George White's approval, the Amund bill to discourage "gin marriages" by requiring five day notice of application for licenses today was within sixty days of becoming a state statute.

The bill passed its last obstacle yesterday when Governor White attached his signature. It will become effective in two months.

Supported by the Ohio League of Women Voters, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Ohio Council of Churches and various other organizations, the bill is designed to prevent hasty marriages.

Backers declared that the five day period which must pass between the time a license is asked and the time it is granted will give applicants time to consider action "which may have been hastily decided upon at liquor parties."

Applications for licenses must be made not less than five days nor more than thirty days before the licenses can be issued under provisions of the bill.

For "good cause," however, a probate judge may waive the five-day requirement and issue a license sooner.

After signing the Amund bill Governor White vetoed the Hyre bill to make it a crime for husbands to fail to support their wives, a measure called by opponents "an alimony-grabbing scheme."

READ THIS FIRST:

Mary Vaughn is private secretary to Ronald K. Foster, an investment banker of Wall Street. She supports her family of mother, twin brothers and a younger sister, Bonnie, who dislikes work and is the spoiled beauty of the family. Mary has always cared for her and given her the best of everything, until she wants to attract Dick Baldwin, the debonair young man whom Mary loves. Martin Frazier, who is Foster's wealthiest client, has persisted in asking Mary to go about with him, until her employer asks her to be nice to him on business principles. Frazier puzzles her with his affectionately courteous attitude. On the way home from a Greenwich Village studio party with some of Dick's famous friends, they have an understanding that as soon as he has reached a certain goal in business they will make more definite plans. Mary is so tired the next evening that she is glad to go home early from the office, planning for a quiet evening, only to find that Bonnie has suddenly decided to give a big party, so Mary assists her mother with the task of making it a success. Bonnie learns that Mary has met an "arty" group, and wants to know them, too. Frazier tells Mary the next day that he is going south for a month, and asks her to dine with him the following evening. Mary had resolved not to go out with Frazier again, but decided to humor him once more before he goes south. She hopes to be engaged to Dick by the time he returns. She has a delightful evening with Dick and promises to attend a hockey game with him on Friday if she does not have to work late. Life is sweet for Mary. Mary has dinner with Frazier at his hotel the next evening, they go to a show afterward. He is surprised to discover that Mary has aroused in him some emotions that he had never known. Mary finds Bonnie asleep on the couch when she arrived home. Mary wakes Bonnie, who complains of the drabness of her life while Mary has so much gaiety; so, when Mary has to work late on Friday night she suggests that Dick take Bonnie to the game instead, and they can stop for her at the office afterward. When she gets into the car with them, she feels like an intruder, but Bonnie sitting between her and Dick. When they get home, Bonnie suggests that Mary should fix them all a lunch. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 22
Mary wasn't hungry, though she had had only a sandwich and tea for her dinner, but she couldn't refuse to feed two "famished" people, so she went into the kitchen, slipped an apron over her tailored jersey, and started the coffee. An inventory of the ice box provided the ingredients for club sandwiches: bacon, tomatoes, lettuce, mayonnaise. She toasted thin slices of bread a golden brown, crisped the bacon and arranged three plates. There was cake in the cake box too.
Mary's head swam dizzily when she stooped down to take the cream out of the refrigerator, but she stood up and closed her eyes for a moment to restore her balance. Bonnie had turned on the radio and was in high spirits. Their voices drifted through the kitchen door to Mary, jubilantly. When she carried the coffee in they were dancing. They swung apart gaily as she entered. Dick hurried toward her to take the coffee urn from her hands.
"Gee, that smells good, all right. That was a swell idea you had, Bonnie, having this lunch." His tone might have implied that it was the idea, not Mary's work, that had provided the lunch. Mary took no particular notice, however. She was too weary for one thing; and she wasn't a person who analyzed tones, words and motives to resent them.
"Bonnie is going with us to the Duchon's on Sunday evening," he told her, filling the cups and serving the girls. "She will like it, won't she, Mary? You liked the crowd."
"And how! She hasn't talked about anything else all week." Bonnie took a plate with a crisp three-decked sandwich and curled up in a deep chair to enjoy herself. "Think of meeting all those swanky people—like Dachiti and Ashley. You're an old dear to take me, Dick." She smiled sweetly with gratitude.
"I'm glad you are going with us," Mary said, without enthusiasm. She couldn't seem to be enthusiastic about anything tonight. She ate part of her sandwich with little appetite, while Bonnie and Dick ate with zest. Dick had two cups of coffee and the plate of cake was cleared away.
Finally, when it was so late that Dick's departure was imperative and Bonnie surmised that he would like to have a few minutes with Mary, she took her leave.
Laying her little hand in Dick's and smiling up at him with the touching guilelessness of a child, she cooed, "This has been just about the nicest evening I ever had, Dick. I don't get to go many places, staying away out here all the time. Mom and Mary won't let me commute to the city."
"I should say not—a kid like you," he agreed with concern. Bonnie was two years younger than Mary. "Well, I've enjoyed it just as much as you have, Bonnie."

Bonnie clapped her hands, delightedly.

When she had gone upstairs, Dick said, "Darned cute little kid, that sister of yours. But helpless as a baby. Never think you were sisters." Of which the last somewhat reassured Mary.

Momentarily, she thought of the contrast in their lives; long, idle days for Bonnie, long nights to rest or the next day to make up for the hours when she was out; early, tedious, wearing trips to the city every day for Mary; swift, exacting, demanding hours of business; short restless nights. She was the man of the family at home and the office wife at business. Neither of them thought they could get along without her.

Mary said, with a tone of motherly pride and anxiety, "Yes, I can't remember when I wasn't protecting Bonnie. Quarrelsome children, strange dogs, bumps and dangers when we were little; and now—life. Dick, I don't whether we should take her to the Duchon's or not," dubiously.

"Why not?" with consternation. "Aren't they all respectable people?"

"Oh, yes!" quickly. "It is just that one thing like that leads to another. As Willa says, others—outsiders—drop in that you don't like especially, sometimes. You've just said yourself that Bonnie is helpless as a baby. We don't like her to get started going to New York."

"Oh, well, with you and me—she can take care of herself; don't worry, as far as that goes. I don't fancy that she likes your rigid chaperonage any too well, anyway, does she?"

"Perhaps not, at times. But people don't know always what is best for them."

"No, it seems not. Anyway we hate to face the facts, usually." He looked at her soberly, as if trying to decide something.

Mary thought he seemed so far away from her tonight, and that it was a very long time since he had held her in his arms. She was sitting on the couch alone, but he made no offer to come and sit beside her. She smiled at him, attempting to recapture their camaraderie. But it was a wistful, weary smile—not the eager, spontaneous one that he had said made her beautiful. There were little lines of fatigue around her mouth and eyes. He knew she looked tired, but the thought that rankled within him, dulled his pity and concern. She could spare an evening for Martin Frazier, but she broke a date with him to work, and palmed him off on her sister. Well, the substitute had been a pleasant one.

It never occurred to Mary to tell Dick about going out with Frazier as a special favor to her boss and as a final farewell to that important business client. Instead, she said, "I am sorry about tonight, Dick."

"Well, you couldn't help it, could you?" His tone surprised her. "Why no, Mr. Foster left to-night for Washington and we had—"

"I know," impatiently. "I don't suppose you will be working on Sunday."

She thought he was joking. "Rather not. What is more, I am going to get some rest tomorrow, so I'll have more pep, and be better company. I feel like a rag to-night."

A hint for him to leave, he wondered unreasonably. "Then I'd better run along, and let you turn in."

"Oh, don't hurry away because of me," regretfully.

"Well, it's late enough. It's a long drive back, alone," he smiled with something of his usual manner. "I hope you get some rest. You need it."

He kissed her, perfunctorily. And Mary crept into bed, even more puzzled at his strange attitude than she had been over Frazier's unexpected consideration for her.

If Martin Frazier had puzzled Mary, that quixotic gentleman was no less puzzled at himself. He was not a man given to analysis, yet he found himself pondering upon his strange attachment for Mary. New fancies—what were they? Ardor that cooled and visions that faded. But Mary had been more than a fancy. Ever since that balmy day in the spring when he had been admitted to her office and she had looked up at him with something like the majestic poise of the forest primeval in her eyes, and alert intelligence on her face, she had caught his fancy. That wasn't all that attracted him. There were other things, as time passed: her enchanting voice, her pleasant manner that held a perfect balance of friendliness and aloof dignity, her keen intelligence—others that he could not define. Added to that, her continued indifference to his advances fired his spirit of conquest.

Heretofore, girls who had struck his fancy—and many who had not—had vied for his attentions. It was his vanity that she resisted him, at the same time that it stimulated his pride to continue the quest.

Then, to his delight and amazement, she had capitulated. So he had laid out his campaign. He was a man who planned his action, and acted on the plan, according to the girl. But the first evening with Mary left him wondering. The second evening bewildered him. Having left her and driving back to New York, he attempted to adjust his thoughts and impressions. He recalled his spontaneous invitation to her to go south with him, and her cryptic refusal—and regretted it. For him it had been such a natural thing to suggest without thinking seriously of her reaction.

Even then, he admitted to himself that that was not the way he wanted Mary. He admitted that he would have been wholly surprised, had she accepted the suggestion.

Then what, how, why did he want her? It suddenly dawned upon him that he wanted her as the average man wants the one woman he loves in all the world—for his mate. To love and cherish and protect. The idea frightened him a little. It was so alien to any idea or thought he had had about any woman.

Sweet little thing, he thought, tenderly. He hated himself for what she must be thinking of him. She was no fool. Sensible, brave, generous little thing. Carrying so many burdens alone. She hadn't said much about her private affairs. But he could guess much. She had no father—two younger brothers and a sister—a modest duplex apartment over in Jersey—Hang it all! This was a new thing to him—something else again. Just when you thought you had your life all formed and regulated—it played a joke on you. This was no little disturbance in his tranquil scheme of things. (TO BE CONTINUED)

DEMAND THAT CITY SOLICITOR ENJOIN ELECTION IS REJECTED

The electric franchise controversy may yet be threshed out in the courts. City Solicitor W. A. Miller announced he had rejected a formal demand made upon him Thursday afternoon by the Dayton Power and Light Co., to bring suit in the name of the city to enjoin the board of elections from arranging to hold a special election in Xenia in June on the franchise question.

The demand, made in writing by J. C. Mathieu, vice president, and P. T. Griest, assistant secretary of the utility, is considered by city officials as preliminary to filing taxpayers' injunction proceedings by counsel representing the Dayton company which was awarded the franchise by City Commission a few weeks ago.

The request, made by the Dayton utility as a property owner and heavy taxpayer in Xenia, petitioned the city solicitor to enjoin the election board from causing a special election to be held, to restrain payment of costs of such an election from city funds and to restrain the board from incurring any costs in connection with such an election.

The Dayton utility had previously filed with City Auditor H. A. Higgins two written protests, objecting to the proposed referendum

FIVE HUNDRED HERE FOR DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA MEETING

Approximately 500 delegates from twenty-four councils in the eighth district of Ohio of the Daughters of the American Lodge were here for the sixteenth annual district rally Friday. Hostess councils were Pride of Xenia Council No. 140 and Obedient Council, No. 160.

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with the seating of the district deputy, Mrs. Susie Woods, Columbus. This ceremony was conducted by the two Xenia councils and a solo, "A Garland of Old Fashioned Roses," was sung by Mrs. Paul McFarland during the service. The seating of district officers was conducted by color bearers of Pride of Xenia Council and the opening ritual was conducted by Obedient Council. Following roll call of deputies, district officers and council officers were conducted by Home City Council, No. 27, Springfield.

Delegates were served luncheon at noon at the K. of P. Hall by women of the United Brethren Church. The afternoon session opened at 1:30 o'clock and, following a business session, a public installation took place, conducted by Mrs. Woods, assisted by Capitol City Council, No. 90, Columbus. The evening program will be open to the public and the rally will be brought to a close with a dance, with music furnished by Al Jones orchestra.

Delegates were present from Franklin, Madison, Fayette, Clinton, Clark, Champaign, Pickaway and Greene Counties.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED IN DEATH

BUENOS AIRES, O., April 24.—Investigation was concluded today by Prosecutor J. D. Sears into the death of Lucille Drew, 25, whose body was found in a well Monday after she had been missing from her home two days.

Sears ruled that the girl had committed suicide because of dependency over unemployment and a recent illness. Investigation of the girl's death was being continued, however, by Sheriff Fred Vollmer.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Do ye look on things after the outward appearance? If any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.—Corinthians, x, 7.

BETTER HOMES WEEK

Better Homes Week is celebrated from April 26 to May 2 in many localities. What constitutes a better home? Not necessarily that it be better.

The merit of a home seems to be measured largely by the degree of affection it excites among its occupants. If members of a family love their home, that home has accomplished its main objective. It may be a tiny cottage, poorly furnished, yet love has transfigured walls, otherwise dull.

Improvements in a home have a tendency to make people love it. There is a craving for beauty that is jarred and wounded if it be unsightly. Human nature demands a refuge after its toils, and if the home provides comfort, we look to it as the parched traveler longs for the oasis in the desert. Let us then adorn and improve our homes all we can, sure that such effort will bring rich rewards.

ADVERTISING AND AMBITION

If one were to take account of the various factors that have stirred Americans to reach their present height of development, a large place would have to be given to advertising. Commercial publicity has been one of the main incentives that have inspired people to activity and enterprise.

What effect does the advertising in newspapers and magazines have on the public mind? One of its principal effects is to arouse their desire to have things. They read about attractive clothing, modern house furnishings, labor saving devices for the home and the office and the farm. They are impressed by notices of travel trips, which give them a longing to see the world. The advertising of automobiles, radios, and a hundred other things, gives them a desire for these advantages.

Most of the articles thus advertised are useful ones. They help people to live in a happier and healthier way and with less effort. It is a wholesome thing to stir people with desire for these things.

Many persons that formerly lived in a meager way, without the things needed for modern comfort, are spurred with desire to possess them. They begin to save money for them; they consider how they can earn more money; they work with more energy; they plan their labor with more foresight, and they become more valuable to employers.

As a result, they get these desired things, they enjoy life more, and they contribute more to the world in general. The production of the country is increased, the demand for commodities has been enlarged, there is more prosperity for everyone. Advertising is thus a great force for social progress in any state.

TOLERATING LAWLESSNESS

The tenor of the Wickersham commission's next report to the President was foreshadowed by the commission's chairman in his address to the Cincinnati regional crime committee. A large part of our national disrespect for law is due, said Mr. Wickersham, to the lawlessness of law enforcement officials, who "attain their ends by means as illegal as the acts they seek to punish or suppress."

The failure of the public to realize this accounts for much of its laissez-faire attitude toward criminal justice. A people cannot expect its laws to be respected unless those laws are themselves respectable and their enforcement is placed in the hands of respectable men, who will employ respectable methods in carrying them out. All the way up from the grafting flatfoot to the mountebank on the bench, we too often entrust the protection of our lives and property to men utterly unsuited to the trust reposed in them. When we permit the government to descend to the "dirty business" or wire-tapping and other extralegal expedients to catch violators of the law, we breed contempt for the law.

As long as we tolerate lawlessness among those who are supposed to enforce the law, we need not be surprised to find it rampant in other ranks of society.

DON'T WANT IT

Now that Alice Longworth has indicated her refusal to seek election to congress in the district her husband, the late Speaker Longworth, represented in congress, it does seem rather odd the picture for her to do anything of that sort. Since the day when as "Princess Alice" Mrs. Longworth first appeared on the horizon in the capital city, she has been something of a personage in her own right and very much given to going her own way regardless of what the custom or convention of the moment might happen to be. It would be rather a negation of her record, and even more or less of a submergence, if the lady should now consent to do what may almost be called the "customary thing," and join the ranks of the "widow congresswomen" in the lower house. It is easier to imagine Mrs. Longworth aspiring to a job in the cabinet or something of that sort.

WANT TO BE THERE?

Primarily the new system is intended to shake up slackers, bunglers and other "well intentioned" saboteurs. Under the plan, the same workers will always work at the same machine. At the locomotive factory, an even more drastic system is in effect. Every machine must yield a specified quantity and quality of products. The cost of production and the resultant profit are carefully calculated for each machine, and then redistributed among individuals on a ratio basis. Thus it will be possible to determine whether a difference exists. If such be the case, then it will be deducted from the salaries of workers producing flaws and wasting raw materials.

No, dear reader, the paragraph we have just quoted does not describe conditions in some wicked, capitalistic factory whose owners systematically grind the faces of the poor and take advantage of their need for food and shelter in order to enslave them. Nothing of the sort. This is a description, direct from Moscow, of some aspects of the beneficent system the Soviet government has inaugurated and is keeping ruthlessly in force, in order to put over its "five-year program." No employer in a capitalistic country could try that sort of peonage and get away with it.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Here's a new one from Rammer Jammer: "No," said the motorist to the traffic judge, "I was not going forty miles an hour. I was not going thirty miles an hour, nor even twenty miles an hour. I was going 'Steady'—or you'll be backing into something directly!"

PERTINENT QUERY

An East Side jeweler has a sign stuck out that reads: "On spot 113 years. Will remove April 15." And beneath it someone scrawled: "What caused the delay?"

LIGHT ON U. S. HISTORY

The correspondence of Stephen A. Douglas with the national leaders of the Civil War period, which has not been opened since the day "The Little Giant," himself, died it up shortly before his death, has been turned over by the Douglas heirs to George Fort Milton.

Mr. Milton writes Coward McCann who published his Andrew Johnson biography, "The Age of Hate," that he has rented an office at Greensboro, N. C., and is going through the papers as part of his research on the Douglas biography he is writing.

"These letters," he says, "are the greatest historical find we have had in America for thirty years."

CHURCH AND COURT

In this joyous spring season, with hundreds of couples walking arm in arm up the center aisle, hopeful of the future, a newspaper editor in Manhattan suddenly recalled that one out of every six married couples in The Capital of The Commonwealth, sooner or later seek a divorce.

That, in itself, is a sweet, vernal thought. Anyway Ye Ed. asked old Rupert Hughes, the wittin' feller, if he'd take a pot-shot at explaining the phenomenon of the "one out of six," and here's what Rupe says: "Any man who has been on a bathing beach knows that there is nothing mysterious about a woman. The blushing bride is a pre-war anachronism. Since glamour has passed out of modern love, the excitement of the wedding ceremony fades with the sunset and antagonistic instincts start jangling before the wedding presents are unpacked."

Rupe may be right, I dunno. But I do know this: Every guy judges all women by the one woman he knows best.

PARADOXICAL BLISS

Speaking of love, marriage and other wonders of nature recalls the fact that a book entitled "Married Love," by Doc, Marie C. Stoppel, is no longer under the Federal ban. G. P. Putnam & Sons hired Morrie L. Ernst, New York's leading Blackstone sharp on that sort of thing, and Morris convinced Judge Woolsey that the book wasn't "naughty." Hizzoner read it and quite agreed. In fact, he said, he found it "rather informative."

And then these words emanated from The Bench: "I cannot imagine the kind of normal mind to which this book would react in a manner obscene or immoral."

"Marriage is a status of antagonistic cooperation. This book has, as its whole thesis, the strengthening of the centrifugal forces in marriage."

The entire case would have been worth that one definition of marriage: "A status of antagonistic co-operation."

What would Rupert Hughes give to have thought out one like that!

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Curried Lamb, Stewed Tomatoes, Spring Vegetable Salad, Rhubarb Pie.

Tea or Coffee
Curried lamb is an economical dish. Tasty, too, and a change from over-eating steak, chops and roasts. And rice will be a welcome change from potatoes.

Today's Recipes
Curried Lamb—Two and one-half pounds lamb shoulder, two tablespoons fat, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half tablespoon curry powder, two tablespoons flour, two tablespoons water, three cups boiled rice. Wipe lamb with clean, damp cloth. Cut into medium sized pieces and remove fat. Melt butter in frying pan, add lamb and cook to a delicate brown. Cover with boiling water, add salt, pepper and curry powder mixed with a little water. Cover and simmer about two and a half hours. Thicken liquid. Mound hot rice in center of hot platter with lamb around it.

Suggestions
Oatmeal in Soup
When making vegetable soup add three tablespoons of uncooked oatmeal with the vegetables, and boil it all together. This imparts a delicious flavor to the soup and is especially good for children.

Get Rid of Root
April showers may bring May flowers, but they also cause a moisture in the basement that may seriously damage your heat unit. Soot, especially when it will eat into the metal of the furnace firebox or pipes and reduce them to dangerous thinness. It will also reduce the heating capacity of your furnace. It has been found that a soot lining only one-eighth of an inch thick will reduce the efficiency of the heating plant 25 per cent. Remove the winter's accumulation before you close the furnace door for the last time this season.

Then all ashes and refuse should be removed from the ash pit and firebox to prevent rusting of the castings and grates which might occur when the ashes absorb the moisture in the air. A pan of unslaked lime in the ash pit will help prevent corrosion by absorbing moisture.

METHODS NOW EMPLOYED TO DEPORT FOREIGNERS, OBJECT OF HEAVY FIRE

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Between the Civil Liberties Union, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, Representative Samuel J. Dickstein, of New York, former Assistant Attorney General William L. Donovan, the Wickersham Law Observance Commission and a few other individuals and agencies, it begins to look as if enough grit might presently be thrown into the bearings of the deportation-of-alien machinery of Secretary of Labor Doak to make it grind a little less smoothly than it has been working hitherto.

Senator Walsh always has been very sensitive to anything suggestive of a denial by the United States government of the right of asylum to purely political fugitives from abroad. Representative Dickstein ventures the opinion that Secretary Doak has operated the deportation machine so fast that a considerable number of foreigners who are not legally deportable at all have been shipped overseas. He says he considers such mistakes inevitable so long as immigration officials continue the practice, which he attributes to them, of dumping victims into the hopper without the authority (in the vast majority of cases) of any tribunal except the labor department's own. And its own, adds Dickstein, being part of the machinery itself, is open to the suspicion of prejudice.

It is true that congressional defenders of the labor department's deportation policy have effectively countered Senator Walsh's and Representative Dickstein's attacks upon it. The senator has been pointed to as a pretty advanced thinker—almost too much so for practical purposes, in that he seems to hold that an out-and-out Communist, for example, may be a mere political fugitive, and not necessarily "per se," by reason of his communistic convictions, a criminal, and as such a subject to expulsion on general principles. Dickstein, coming from the Chatham square, Grand Canal, North and Baxter street and the East riverfront section of Manhattan island, speaks for a constituency so largely of foreign origin that it is represented as naturally sympathetic toward newly arrived pilgrims, knowing precisely how they must feel from having (mostly) felt the same way itself.

The Civil Liberties Union's activities likewise have been discounted fairly effectively in the past by the simple answer that it is a "radical organization" anyway.

In connection, however, with the much-talked-about Guido Serio deportation case, the union has taken the edge from this rejoinder to a great extent through employment of ex-Attorney General Donovan of Buffalo, N. Y., as its legal adviser in opposing the immigration bureau's plans. With his record, his justice department record and his record as one of Mr. Hoover's most enthusiastic supporters in the 1928 presidential campaign, Colonel Donovan, of course, is not open to the slightest suspicion of radicalism. There is nothing for the labor department to do, indeed, with the colonel as its critic, but to argue the actual merits of the course it is trying to pursue.

In the Serio matter no question is raised as to the labor department's right to deport. The subject of the controversy does not deny the Communistic utterances he is accused of having made publicly, leading to his arrest and the order for his expulsion, at a meeting in Erie (Pa.) nearly a year ago. The point at issue is whether or not the immigration authorities are justified in returning him to his native Italy, where he is under sentence of death as a political opponent of Mussolinism, instead of permitting him to leave at his own expense for Russia, where the soviet regime already has signified its willingness to receive him and whether he has proved his ability to pay his way.

Should he accomplish nothing more, Colonel Donovan at least has succeeded in extracting from Secretary Doak, who previously had refused to discuss the subject at all, an explanation of his reason for insisting upon the former policy, which is that: "We have no diplomatic relations with that country"—Russia.

The colonel's task now is to establish the principle, if he can, that it is immaterial whether or not the United States and Russia are upon diplomatic terms when a case like Serio's is at stake.

The outcome probably also will serve as a precedent in the similar dispute pending in San Francisco (the Serio fight is before the federal courts in New York) over the deportation of the Japanese Communist—Sadachichi Kenmotsu, who also wants to pay his own fare to Russia, whereas Commissioner General of Immigration Harry E. Hull, declaring this to be "impracticable," insists on sending the oriental radical back to Japan.

Senator Walsh, Representative Dickstein, the Civil Liberties Union and Colonel Donovan combined, however, probably will not finally prove to be as serious an embarrassment to Secretary Doak as port threatens to prove, if it turns out to be of the complexion hinted at by its chairman, ex-Attorney General George Wickersham, in a speech not long ago, during which he is quoted as having mentioned that:

"The commission, early in its investigations, found the deportation field to be one 'in which there was much rank maladministration and great disregard for the fundamental rights secured by the constitution to all persons, including alien aliens.'"

Certainly no one can accuse Chairman Wickersham of over-liberality.

Secretary Doak has the law back of him, undoubtedly, in his campaign to deport all foreigners illegally in the United States, but indications promise a mighty thorough raking over the coals, in the near future, of the methods his department has been employing thus far.

MOON PHASE CYCLE DISCOVERED BY METON

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

There is a cycle of time of 235 synodic months (235 times 29 1/2 days) about the equivalent of 19 Julian years, in which the moon goes through a regular series of phases, after which the same phases start to recur again on the same days of the week, for another 19 years. The man who made this remarkable observation, in the year 433 B. C., bore the name of Meton, so this lunar-phase-cycle is known as the Metonic cycle. It is the cycle employed in the ecclesiastical calendar for finding the date of Easter and other movable feasts reckoned from it. The first Sunday after the first full moon that follows the sun's passage of the Vernal Equinox is Easter.

Geriatrics Explained By Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Pediatrics is the department of medicine dealing with the diseases of children. Of all specialties it has developed the most rapidly in the present century. Not only has knowledge advanced, but the attitude of the men who practice in this specialty, their unselfish devotion to the very exacting conditions of such practice, is the most wholesome of any medical specialty. This is proper, because if a child takes the trouble to get born into the world it certainly should be assured of living to do its work. And such assurance can be given more certainly than ever before in history. The great improvement in the lengthening of human life consists almost entirely in lowering the death rate of infancy.

The specialty at the other extreme of life is called geriatrics. It is the study of diseases of the aged. It naturally cannot hope to make such progress as pediatrics. The stimulus the pediatrician has is the vigor and responsiveness of the young bodies he treats.

But geriatrics is by no means without its triumphs. Knowledge of the treatment of many of the diseases, particularly like to afflict old people has been accumulating at a great rate during the last decade. The treatment of heart disease, of diabetes, of pernicious anemia, of superficial skin cancers, is in every case far more scientific and satisfactory than it was.

The fact which starves most physicians when they first begin to examine old people is the surprising amount of signs of disease they show and still remain perfectly healthy. They have rattles in the chest, they wheeze, they are short of breath, their pulses skip and jump, but still they continue to get about as well as ever. They will be down with pneumonia one day and almost out the next, spry as ever. One old fellow of 87, in a Confederate soldiers' home, had a heart attack, resulting in heart

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. M. Louisville, Ky.: "Would like to know about Trench Mouth. Do people ever die of it, and what causes the disease? What is the cure?"

Answer: Trench Mouth is the name that was given during the war to an infection of the gums and palate. The germs which cause it were isolated by a physician named Vincent, and it is usually called Vincent's Angina by physicians. It is quite common, was well known before the war, and has nothing necessarily to do with trenches. It is not a fatal or complicated. Local treatment by hydrogen peroxide applications to the diseased gums is often sufficient to cure. Constitutional treatment by injections of drugs into the veins is employed in severe cases.

Aladdin's Lamp Help To Advisor

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I wish I had Aladdin's lamp. I'd rub it, and when the genie appeared I'd give him the letter that just came to my desk and say, "Make this little home happy. Compel this husband to be kind to his wife and to develop a sense of fair play. Make him, somehow, see that his unfairness and cruel tongue are some day going to make him just as unhappy as they make his wife now."

If a genie could do that he'd be doing so much more good than furnishing wonderful clothes and palaces and preparing banquets as he did for Aladdin. He would be feeding and comforting hungry souls with the good and those who benefit that would last.

A loving wife writes me that she has been married four years. She loves her husband dearly and they have a baby three years old, who is "crazy" about his daddy. The loving wife works, so her mother lives with them and keeps house. One would think that with that set-up things would be pretty bright, provided the mother-in-law in question was the right sort. But, no, hubby grows colder and colder, spends his evenings away from home, never takes his wife and his mother-in-law, and takes his wife's money and spends it. If she asks him about it he says it's none of her business. Loving Wife wants to know what she can do.

"Give me the best advice you can," she writes, "and I will carry it out and see if we can't make our home happier. I love my baby and my husband. I am just crazy about him, and he hurts me so bad."

I am afraid any advice I can give won't help to make your husband's disposition any better. Loving Wife.

Make Thin Face Look Rounded

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I have rather a long, thin face, and would like to give it a more softly-rounded appearance. I've been applying my rouge as you suggested, and it has helped a lot. However, are there any principles of hair arrangement which would assist me in achieving this effect?"

You can indeed make your face appear more softly-rounded by observing certain principles of hair arrangement. You should avoid a center part, as it will only accentuate the length of your face. A side part, with a dip or swirl of hair down across the forehead will help to shorten your face. A bang will also have this effect. If your face is long and thin, you should allow your hair to come down over your forehead, and should fluff it out over your ears. This will help to give roundness to the outline of your face.

"Dear Miss Glad: Talk about your 'illy-white hands'—boy, mine have certainly undergone a big improvement since I've been following the instructions contained in your article on 'Care of the Hands and Nails.' And what's more, I've taken to manicuring my own fingernails at home. It's a big saving, and your manicuring instructions are so clear that I'm becoming quite adept at it. However, I've one little worry. Every so often, tiny white spots appear on my nails. What causes these white spots, and how can they be prevented?"

The white spots that appear on your nails may be due to some digestive disturbance. Generally, however, these spots result from the injury of the nails by hard implements. Take care that you do not knock your fingernails against solid objects. Never use a nail file or a hard implement to push back your cuticle, as this practice may cause the appearance of the spots. I would suggest that you massage a bit of warmed olive oil into the base of your nails nightly before retiring. This procedure will help to strengthen and toughen the nails, and render them less susceptible to bruising.

"Dear Miss Glad: Although my skin is usually fairly clear of eruptions, fever blisters occasionally form on my lips. These are most unattractive, and are very slow in healing. What causes them, and how should they be treated?"

Fever blisters result not only from colds and fevers, but also from indigestion, constipation and infections of the teeth and tonsils. The first thing that you should do is to modify your diet with attention to better elimination. You may treat the sores with spirits of camphor, to dry them up. Prepare a small bottle of the spirits of camphor and apply it frequently during the day. Also, apply camphor ice or zinc ointment to the fever blisters before retiring at night. Either of these preparation will prove soothing and healing to the disfiguring and annoying sores.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

CRITERION WINNER IN SOFTBALL GAME AT PAINTERSVILLE

The Criterion softball team, its lineup augmented by Joe Smittle, slugging member of the champion Lang Chevrolet, eked out an 8 to 6 triumph over the Paintersville softball aggregation on the latter's diamond Thursday night.

Smittle, who played second base for the Clothiers, was the only player on either team to hit safely more than once. Joe smacked out a home run and also had another hit to his credit. Both teams played raggedly all night, showing lack of practice, or something. The contest, the first of the season for Paintersville, was limited to seven innings. The Criterion took an immediate lead with a four-run spurge in the get-away round and led all the way through the home team staged threatening rallies in the last two innings.

Herman Wells was on the mound for the winners and "Atlas" Smith, former Criterion first baseman, pitched for the Paintersville team. The same teams will meet in a return game on the Washington Park diamond in Xenia next Tuesday evening. Score by innings:

Criterion 410 200 1-8
Paintersville 611 003 1-6

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

The Brooklyn Buffoons, sometimes referred to as the Robins or the Trolley Dodgers, can't miss winning the National League pennant if their opponents' sense of humor holds out.

Already the Brooklyn's boisterous collection of comedians who play first-class baseball, have the rest of their league howling with laughter. By the time the Flatbush Funny Boys meet such tough bables as the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals these teams should be so weak from uncontrollable mirth that they ought to be pushovers.

Maybe it's all part of the Walter Robinson's dark strategy—to lull the foe into the belief the Brooklyn lineup is composed of Charley Chaplin, Ed Wynn, Harold Lloyd, the Four Marx Brothers with Laurel and Hardy as the battery. Under the impression that they are watching a movie the other boys relax as Babe Herman (screened by a cloud of laughing gas) speaks to the plate and—bino!—a home run and there goes the old ball game.

Heretofore the Brooklyn have held off on their gags until warm weather set in, so the fans could unbuckle their vests without fear of a cold and do their laughing in the height of comfort. But not this season. This is the year the Flatbush Flock figured to win and, as a result, they are holding nothing in reserve.

The first gag has already been pulled. And it was a wow. Al Cohen, a rookie Brooklyn outfielder, made his big league debut by batting out of order and getting away with it. This could, of course, happen only to a Brooklyn player. No other team possesses a player schooled in such a subtle form of wit.

It all began when Babe Herman began miffing fly balls in right field. As Brooklyn went to bat the Babe got to arguing with Robinson. "Well," he snapped, at last, "put somebody out there who can get 'em!"

"I will!" Robinson snapped back and announced that he had a hard-hitting, non-fielding outfielder, who had just batted for the pitcher. Earl Mattingly, would replace him next inning.

Boone believed it. He rushed out to right field when Brooklyn's half of the frame ended. So did Herman. Meanwhile, Del Bissionette had notified the umpire of the change. Too late, the manager discovered what had happened. But Herman now had to be removed from the game. So Al Cohen, the rookie, was sent out to play the position.

Since Boone had batted in place of the pitcher, Cohen, as Boone's substitute, should have batted ninth in the lineup. But when the Brooklyn's half of the sixth arrived Cohen went to bat first, batting third in the batting order. Instead it should have been either Cy Moore, who had replaced Mattingly, or Ernie Lombard, who had come into the game as catcher the same instant Moore had taken the mound.

While the sports writers screamed from the press box with no one paying attention to them, Cohen singled. Four other batters followed him before the inning ended. In the seventh Lombard led off and then who appeared at the plate again but young Mr. Cohen! This time, however, he was batting in his proper position.

Again Cohen hit safely and completed the incredible feat of making two hits in one legal time at bat.

Thus did the Brooklyn make their 1931 bow in a game that should have been reviewed by dramatic critics instead of reported by sports writers. This first laugh of the season was not only funnier than some of the Brooklyn stunts of the past, such as runners passing each other on the base paths, but it also showed fine promise, coming so early in the year, of a campaign jammed with jokes.

But don't forget that there's a great possibility of Mr. Robinson's boys enjoying the last laugh—as they cash world series checks.

CRITICISM was being heard Friday of the action of many patrons of the home talent play "Corporal Eagen" at the Opera House Thursday night, in leaving the theater while the "Star Spangled Banner" was being played at the close of the performance.

The show is under patriotic auspices, being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary of Foody Post, and contains patriotic features, including the finale in which the newly-adopted national anthem is used.

Many patrons are said to have shown disrespect for the anthem, by departing while it was being played. The act is believed to have been thoughtless but aroused patriots Friday, who urged that proper respect be shown the melody at the performance Friday night.

AUTO ASSOCIATION FIGHTS TAG COSTS

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—Attempts of the legislature's special taxation committee to increase automobile license costs through a sliding scale levy on vehicle weight will be fought to the bitter end, spokesmen for the Ohio State Automobile Association declared here today.

Declaring that the tentative measure will lead to "serious inequalities," Charles C. Jones, secretary of the association, asserted that the present taxing system by which licenses are made in proportion to horsepower, should be retained.

Estimated increases in license fees would boost the general tax burden of Ohio motorists, Jones declared.

(Signed)—Mrs. Minnie Norflet, St. Louis, Mo. You, too, can have a clear, smooth complexion by using Resinol Soap daily and a touch of Resinol Ointment to heal the occasional pimple. How you feel in the morning tells the real story

THAT'S the time you should feel like whistling and singing. Your muscles should itch to tackle the day's work. Your mind should quickly solve the problem that baffled you the afternoon before. Don't let your health slip away so that a night's rest fails in its natural recuperative powers. When you awaken with a "dragged out" physical or mental feeling, heed those bad symptoms. That's the time you need a dependable tonic to help restore your old time energy. Try a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is sold by druggists.

10:30—Morning worship. Sermon: "Thomas—The Missing Person." 6:15—Luther League. Topic: "Our Work in India." The pastor will lead. 7:30 p. m.—Union services in Trinity M. E. Church, E. Main St., with the Rev. W. N. Shank preaching.

Experience alone can lead souls from doubt to certainty. The cause of your doubt is lack of certain experiences concerning prayer and regular church attendance. A welcome is extended to you, here, where you are a stranger only once.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

W. H. Tilford, Pastor

Science has demonstrated many times, that the "Physical Man" needs to cultivate the "Spiritual Man," that life may be most effective. The exercise in the sunshine, does the physical good, but the exercise of Christian worship in the sunshine of Christ's presence does both the spiritual and physical good. Come to church!

In almost every city, chimers in Church steeples ring out a welcome to old friends and newcomers. The bells invite you to Church. Remember this when you hear them ring.

The Trick

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.—Matthew 6:24.

SOME people try hard to carry water on both shoulders, to serve God and mammon at the same time. It is said that some African tribes snare monkeys by putting gourds with sweets in them where the monkeys run. The little beasts grasp the coveted sweets and will not let go, so that they are easily taken. Evil plays a similar trick on those who are tempted successfully.

They let themselves be caught by sin because they like some pleasure, comrade, possession, and will not let it go.

GEO. ELIOT'S RULE OF LIFE

"I will try this day to live a simple sincere and serene life, repelling promptly every thought of discontent, anxiety, discouragement, impurity, self seeking; cultivating cheerfulness, magnanimity, charity, and the habit of holy silence; exercising economy in expenditure, generosity in giving, carefulness in conversation, diligence in appointed service, fidelity to every trust, and child-like faith in God. In particular, I will try to be faithful to those habits of prayer, work study, physical exercise, eating and sleep which I believe the Holy Spirit, has shown

DAIRMEN ELECT

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—Chairman ship of the Ohio Dairy Products Association today was held by E. J. Helbig of Canton. He was elected at a meeting of the association yesterday. F. E. Walker of Cleveland, was chosen vice chairman.

NEW KROGER BRANCH HERE PLANS FORMAL OPENING SATURDAY

Formal opening of the new store of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., at 4 S. Detroit St., in a room newly remodeled for the new tenant, will take place Saturday.

The opening of the new store will be celebrated with outstanding bargains and other special attractions. The new store replaces the original Kroger store in Xenia, which occupied a room in the Donges Bldg., 30 S. Detroit St., for many years before it was forced to vacate recently.

The new store occupies a room in the Allen Bldg., vacated recently by the L. A. Wagner jewelry store, which moved to 7 W. Main St. in the same building. In addition extensive remodeling of the building was done by W. O. Jeffries and Son, Xenia contractors, who enlarged the new quarters by combining the former jewelry room with a room formerly used as a directors' room by the Commercial and Savings Co.

A narrow alleyway in the rear was also closed and thrown into the new store room, as was part of the main hall of the building. A handsome new front, new fixtures and equipment were installed to complete the store for the new tenant.

R. Caplinger and L. Cleveland are managers assigned to the new store.

ROYAL SIAMESE AT REST IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, April 24.—King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni of Siam were in seclusion today at Ophir Hill, the Whitelaw Reid estate at Purchase, following a day of shopping and sightseeing in New York. They indicated they would spend the next few days quietly at the beautiful Reid estate, declining many invitations.

The king yesterday underwent a short examination and treatment of his eye, the weakened condition of which caused him to visit the United States, while the queen bought gowns and hats.

An elaborate court headquarters has been established at Ophir Hill and as the king is the absolute ruler of Siam he will continue to make all decisions on government matters, even though thousands of miles away from his domain. Arrangements have been perfected for him to keep in constant touch with Siam through cable and telephone.

OHIO IS WORRIED ABOUT FRUIT CROP

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—Still chilled by frost and cold weather from which no immediate relief has been promised, Ohio was gravely worried about its summer fruit crop today.

A general calm and clearing skies invited frost and only artificial methods could have prevented serious damage to apple, peach and cherry trees in the hardest-hit sections, crop experts here declared.

Hundreds of trees left undamaged by a sharp cold snap Wednesday night were undoubtedly hurt in last night's cold, it was believed.

Beauty Umpires Set New Hairdressing Mode

Coiffure Guild Bans Shingle Bob and Decrees Long Bob of Curls and Ringlets to Decorate Milady This Spring and Summer.

OLD SHINGLE BOB.

In solemn conclave arbiters of fashion decree that the shingle bob is dead and has been replaced by long locks made fanciful with bunches of curls. No longer will the girl of today keeping pace with fashion permit her raven or golden tresses to be cut short.

By ALICE ALDEN
NEW YORK, April 24.—The hands of the clock hold the secret to a successful coiffure. That is the latest and somewhat terrifying news from the convention of beauty experts now assembled in New York. In solemn conclave it is being decided just how we are going to dress our hair, trim our eyebrows and tint our lovely cheeks, not to speak of doing a little art work on the well-known Cupid's Bow. But to return to the engrossing subject of hair, as woman must ever do, sometimes even against her own wishes.

The long hair versus the bob controversy has waxed acute during the winter. The younger generation, many of whom had never worn long hair, have been experimenting with growing locks with the aid of bunches of curls and little switches. Their mammas and even their grandmammas, have stuck to the bob, because it is undeniably youthful and comfortable. Besides, they have more time to spend hours at the hairdressers to keep in trim. But the beauty experts have settled the whole affair, and at the same time introduced a lot of new complications. But then complicated locks are nothing new.

It is to be the long bob this Spring and Summer. Yes, the definitely long bob, with lots of little ringlets, curls and whatnots, to decorate the nape of the neck and nestle in the vicinity of a pearly ear. The shingle bob has been ruled absolutely out by the beauty umpires, and so there's nothing to do but to get in line with the new decree. It seems that the experts were quite willing to feature one shingle bob at their convention and exhibit, if only for old time's sake. But not one of the sixty models would let her raven or golden tresses be cut so short. And so there is no shingle.

Women have become hair conscious and the beauticians and beauty parlors continue to reap the benefit despite the depression. The coiffure must be kept in perfect trim and must be trimmed.

And the semi-long hair demands more attention and fussing over than any other style. And that is something that doesn't seem to phase even the busiest woman an iota—in fact that may be the great attraction. One important point to remember is that the new coiffures, like the new hats, are all revealing and thrust the complexion and features in sharp prominence. And maybe that isn't also in line with the clever beauticians either?

MINIATURE GOLF COURSE WILL OPEN

At least one of Xenia's myriad miniature golf courses is on the verge of opening for the summer season of bantam golf play.

Announcement was made Friday that the Bobby Lou links, located on the Springfield Pike, may be formally opened to the public Saturday night this week in the event the weather proves favorable.

This course is being entirely rejuvenated with new greens and attractive hazards installed and operators of the links believe Xenians will find it equally as sporty if not more so than any other in the city this year.

Should the weather prove inclement the opening will be deferred until sometime next week, however.

"CORPORAL EAGEN" PROVES HILARIOUS ON FIRST OFFERING

Days of the World War were revived when "Corporal Eagen," a comedy of the American rookie, was presented by local talent, under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary at the Opera House Thursday night. But the memories of war days that were recalled were not unpleasant ones, for the production was a riot of laughs from start to finish.

The plot, what little there is, centers around the antics of two rookies in camp, who finally capture into their own when they capture a German spy. One of the rookies, sweethearts is so much in love with him that it is impossible for her to stay away from the camp and their actions to keep guards from thinking she is a spy makes many amusing situations.

"Red Eagen," the Irish dough boy, was capably played by Robert Downing and "Sally," his girl, was played by Miss Alice Foley. "Izzy Goldstein," "Red's" Jewish buddy, was played by Arthur Hyman, who, it might be said, "stole" the show. Harry Kierman and George Swartz, without whom a home talent show would be incomplete, played the parts of Red's and Izzy's fathers.

Other characters, each of whom contributed to the mirth, were: J. D. Burger, "Guard McGooey," Harry Williams, "Kloozey" (private), Archer Maxwell, "McGinnis" (private), "Bud" McPherson, "Mary" and "Marie," nurses, Mrs. Paul Halder and Mrs. V. G. Martin, war worker, Mrs. Fred Snyder; Y. M. C. A. worker, C. L. Hildebrecht, cook, Roger Chambliss; captain Perry Swindler, corporals of guard, Richard Moore, newsboy, Edward Higgins; "Rastus," Fred Haller.

Musical numbers were presented during the play by a girls' chorus, composed of the Misses Donna Devoe, Aletha Devoe, Ruth Killen, Betty Hoag, Emma Benson, Marjorie Shoemaker, Mildred Jordan, Evelyn Quinn, Louise Bath, Marian Snyder, Rose Hornick, Dorothea Burba, Marjorie Snyder, Juanita McPherson, Evelyn Ary, Alberta Murray and Mrs. Irene Kehle. A sailors' chorus, composed of Legionnaires, also contributed to the program and the "awkward rookie squad," composed of Company I members, added a military atmosphere to the play.

A patriotic pageant, in which 160 school children took part, opened the program when Philip Campbell gave the reading, "My Dream of the Big Parade." A minstrel show was a special feature with George Haller, Ernest Mangum, Paul Halder and V. G. Martin as end men and J. W. Allison, Interlocutor. A solo, "Rose of No Man's Land," was sung by Miss Eleanor McDonnell during the minstrel.

A specialty act featuring popular songs, was presented between the second and third acts by Bob Owens and Miss Mildred Mason, assisted by Miss Lucille Dunham at the piano. Music between acts was furnished by an orchestra under the direction of H. E. Seall. Miss Katherine Davey was piano accompanist for the production.

"Corporal Eagen," which was staged by the Universal Producing Co., Fairfield, Ia., and was under the direction of Miss Carolyn Sanders, will be presented again Friday evening and if you want to have several good laughs it is well worth seeing.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Hollywood is gratified at the success of Doris Kenyon in her return to the screen after the death of her husband, Milton Sills, broke up one of the happiest families in the film colony.

Instead of giving way to grief, Doris courageously set out to continue her concert and screen work and has been assigned to play opposite William Powell in "Correspondent," which will be his first for Warners. It has been postponed at his request to allow Doris to finish her role in the Arliss picture, "Alexander Hamilton."

The film will be her fourth on the Warner lot since January 1 as she started in "You and I," now called "Fame" and followed with "Upper Underworld" and the Arliss film. She will go to Europe to fill concert dates this summer.

Uncle Carl Laemmle is going to roadshow Universal's version of "Seed," the Charles G. Norris novel, through forty-five cities in the United States, Canada and abroad, building it up as the roadshow successor of "All Quiet on the Western Front." The plans were laid, it is said, after John Stahl's effort proved to have big possibilities at the box office. It puts Lois Wilson, the former silent star, back in the big popularity class and is said to indicate a bright future for Bette Davis, who was lured by the stage from the paths of exclusive Boston society. She made her debut with Provincetown Players in "The Earth Between," played stock in Rochester and then invaded New York in "Broken Dishes," where Carl Laemmle Jr. saw her and induced her to sign a five year contract after an appearance with Richard Bennett in "Solid South." She will be seen also with Sidney Fox and Conrad Nagel in "Bad Sister."

It was a "lucky break" for Polly Moran when she fell down stairs and broke her nose in three places just before Easter because, in fixing the break, the surgeons also ironed out a slight crook that had been there all her life, giving her a perfectly straight nose. She is now ready to start work on "Politics," which Metro held up awaiting her recovery.

Paramount apparently harbors no hard feelings about Ruth Chatterton's defection to Warners. They have just bought Leonard Merriek's novel, "The Laurels and the Lady" for her next Samson Raphaelson will make the adaptation. The story is laid in the Kimberly diamond fields.

Paramount is also planning a talkie version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," by Robert Louis Stevenson, in which John Barrymore made his earliest screen hit. No one has been assigned to the story.

Twenty Years '11-Ago-'31

Fire of mysterious origin destroyed the Sugarbrook U. P. Church near Bellbrook.

Mr. Harold Messenger, of Starling Medical College, Columbus, spent the week-end at his home here.

The ninety-fourth anniversary of the Greene County American Bible Society Auxiliary was observed at a union church service at the Second U. P. Church.

The Home road from the Home gate to the fuse factory is being macadamized.
